发三十二月九年後春 INTIMATIONS PURE VOLATILE EUCALYPTUS OIL.

DISTILLED FROM THE LEAVES OF SELECTED SPECIES OF EUCALYP US. LUCALYPTUS OIL has long taken a foremost place as a "household remedy" in Australia. When applied externally it has a powerful stimulant and southing action but dose not blister the most sensitive skin and no application known will so quickly subdue the pain of musoular rhoumatism. Taken internally in small doses, it note as powerful stimulant and autispasmodic, whilst its scoods v action induces sleep. The penetrating agreeable vapour of the Oil is additive, and when inhaled relieves Asthma, Bronchitis, Catarra, and Sore Throat. It is also a most powerful antise tio and germicide, being three times as effectual as Carbolio uses in this direction being very numerous. The colive properties of the Oil depend upon a lerpene called Encalyptol, and we guarantee this Oil, prepared specially for us. to contain the largest obtainable percentage of Encalyptol and

HONGKONG, SEPTEMBER 23RD, 1898.

A very able and suggestive report on the trade of Shaughai for last year has been compiled by Mr. Consul Jamieson, a copy of which we received by the last mail. It opens with the gratifying zemerk that although the trade of Shanghai for 1892 has not resulted in any great profits to the foreign merchant, it has, on the whole, been fairly satisfactory. A little further on, however, Mr. Jamieson refers to the great silver difficulty, and after mentioning the collapse of the New Oriental Bank and the reconstruction of the Chartered Mercantile Bunk, he says :- "Other banks, though " "less severely pinched, have been constrained "to keep a large portion of their capital "in a liquid condition to meet possible sterl-"ing demands, and consequently have been "unable to give the usual facilities to many "of their old customers. Credit has thus "been greatly restricted and the development "of business other than on old established "lines has been checked." In this short passage Mr. Jamieson bascorrectly diagnosed the evil from which the China trade, including the trade of this Colony, has for some time past been suffering. All the authorities seem now to be spreed that the general trade, meaning thereby the exchange of merchandise, has during the period depression from which we have so long suffered been proceeding on sound and moderately remunerative lines, and so for as this Colony is concerned we hear no hing now of the "sad fate of the island of St. Thomas" being in store for us What we have been suffering from a simply or develop old ones and a general decline. value. There is a feeling abroad, however, that we have at last turned the corner, or at

But although it is probable that the same amount

Hundreds of obstacles may be thrown in the way of trade by obstinate or interested officials, as witness the transit pass question now being fought out in the Canton province, and these can only be successfully encountered on the spot. But if it is known that importers have no interest whatever in goods after they are landed and paid for, their complaints of ossotions and squeezes, however injurious to British trade in general, will have but small chance of being

The change is another illustration of the many evils created by the unsteadings of the archanges. So long as the relation between gold and eliver remains in the same processous condition as at present, so long will the indent form of ballness be the only safe method. Last year there was a tall in the gold value of aliver of some 9 per cent., and in 1501 there was a similar fall of about 12 per cent. Next year there may be an equally great or a greater fall, or there tay be an equally great res. In either cease one set of operators must lose and another set must rain. It is not the mere low price of tilves that gain. It is not the mere low price of silver that in complained of, but the unsteadings. This fall in gold prices must necessarily neutralise the effect of the fall in silver as a bounty on the export trade of silver countries, and had exchange The work is alike interesting to the student have seen as great or an even greater increase in the export trade of China than that which has actually taken place. As Mr. Jamieson says, cheap ocean freights have also assinted to a considerable extent bringing about the increase. The natural tendency of trade to develop, independently of fortuitous circumstances. must likewise be taken into account. Howwe have the gratifying fact that there is an increase and a substantial one. Tes, of course, has declined—that particular branch condition—but the decline has been more all the Act of 1889, so that in future no Chinese than made up for by the increase in other articles. It is pointed out in the report has to report how many Chinese there are on that as China does not produce the precious board, and in default of so doing he will be liable first class, on board H.M.S. Pigmy, who died as metals in any appreciable quantity, it is evident that her purchasing power of foreign manufactures must depend upon the amount | in regard to the importation of Chinese—that is, of her exports. The expansile character of the export trade indicates therefore great brught. possibilities in the import trade.

And this leads us to a portion of the report which may prove usefully suggestive for this growth of the cotton industry at Shanghai. Mr. Jaimeson says the figures showing the supply from the Shanghai Cotton Cloth Mill "are as yet but small. "cannot so far seriously affect the domand "for English made cloths," but as there is every probability that the output will grow he places the figures side by side with the foreign article for purposes of comparison. And when we look at these figures we do no find the local production so very small. The import of English drills last year amounted to 154,000 pieces and the output of the Shanghai mill was 40,000 pieces, or more than a fourth of the total imported from England. In the case of sheetings 60,000 pieces were manufactured locally, which is rather less than one-tenth of the quantity imported from England. Of these two articles much larger quantity comes from America than from England, and if we take the total import no doubt the local duction looks rather small beside it, but be remembered that the industry is as yet in its infancy. The figures for cutton varu are also interesting. The quantity manufactured locally last year was 22,500 piculs, while the quantity imported from Bombay was 692,000 piculs and from England 16,552 piculs. Both the cloth full capacity, and their manufactures com- resolve to urge the Silverites to resort to every mand good prices, the yarn especially being expedient to oppose the repeal. eagerly bought up by Chinese at prices some 10 or 12 per cent. above that of the best

Bombay yarn. Mr. JAIMESON BAYS :--Both these mills, though nominally owned by pri vate companies, are, in reality, semi-official concerns The clot-mill a particular is generally understood to be controlled and directed by one of the highest lacanas, in the province of Toledo, with disofficials in the Empire, hence the jealousy with which the quasi-monopoly originally granted to it is guarded. Inforts. I understand, are being made to establish to have lost their lives and great damage has further mills, as d it is improbable that the present been done. As the lucrative nature of the business becomes known, terms will be made in some form or other, and I look forward, before long, to see numerous cotton mills, either at Shanghai, or else at some of the neighbouring ports. TIENTSIN:

13th September. Tientsin was startled this week by exaggerated reports of stirring events in Taka; rumour. and fear begot as usual a bulky expansion of the real incidents of a fracts which might have been serious. Wile I ghtering a steamer at Tongku last week, the manager of the Taka Tug and Lighter Company had reason to complain of careless stowage on the part of the stevedores; unture's noblemen resented this interference on the part of the external barbarian and showed themtions. But the general joy was saddened in a selves contumerious, whereupon Mr. Macrae, the official in question, promptly suspended (discharged?) the entire crew, laodah and all. This summary proceeding gave even less satisfaction than the much ceremony, the highest military honous verbal complaint. After an ineffectual attempt to bring out-to use the striking language of Labour's leaders in the West-the whole of the employes and so paralyse the trade of the port, the malcontents fell back on the argumentum, w chai Wareh'se Co. buculinum, which in this case was a sword; they went and hired three professional bullies, and accompanied by an ardent crowd of village symp bisers paid a visit to Mr. Wong on Friday last. This gentleman is the interpreise and local compradors of the company, and iss to bear the brunt of most of the friction between foreigners and natives. WITTY AFTER DINNER TALK.

SOME BRIGHT SPEECHES WHICH WERE DELIVERED OVER THE WINE. After-dinner specches have become the repository of much of the most enjoyable humour and graceful repartee that has found utterauce. A wealth of wit has been uncorked with the champagne, to sparkle for the moment and vanish like the bead in the crystal gobiet. It was in great part at the table, in club or inn, that Dr. Johnson gave out his readlest sallies, and hamble indeed is the house whose walls have not echoed to after-dinner pleasantry. Embalmed. in tradition, the reliquary of the unwritten, we. find many curious instances of the rendy wit of some of our great men. At a dinuer in Boston to William M. Evarts. then Secretary of State, the toastmaster introduced Mr. Evarts by calling attention to the fact that, "When we sat down we contemplated on a sage stoffed with goose." At a banquet given to the great orator, Edward Everett, he was introduced by Judge Story, who took occasion to perpetrate this excellent pun .- "Applause shall follow in the footsteps of fame wherever it goes." L verett's complimentary rejoinder was that "Aspirants for position in the temple of fame would never ascend higher than one story. Campbell, the English poet, created consternation and subsequent merriment at a dinuer of literary friends by proposing the health of Napoleon Bonaparte. A marmar of surprise went round the table, and one patriotic Briton asked how he dared make so bold as to propose Napoleon's health to a company of Englishmen. He once hanged a publisher," replied Camppell, and the glasses were drained cheerfully.— Kate Field's Washington.

DRUGS IN CIGARETTES.

THE INCREDIENTS USED IN MANUFACTURING DIFFERENT BRANDS.

The details of the manufactors of cigarettes are kept to a greater or less degree a secret by the manufacturers, each of whem has his own peopliar combination of tobaccos. None of the brands on the market is composed of one kind only. This recipe is not divulged outside of the firm. But this is not all. The original mixture is merely a basis for artificial flavouring. To begin with, various essential oils are added. The list of these includes rose. rose geranium, vanilla bean, Tonka bean and liquorice root. These ingredients are added after the tobacco has been chopped into shreds in readiness to he rolled into cigarettes. Finally the particular drug chosen, in the thape of liquid solution, is sprayed on the material with an atomizer, while the tobacco is stirred and mixed. The quantity employed is very carefully judged, so many drops being allowed for each cigarette. For obvious reasons I cannot mention of oigarettes, but there is as doubt that spium. valerian, and cannabis indica are utilized to the largest extent. Eeach manufacturer may be said to create a special drug babit among those who smoke his brand, so that they are not satisfied with any other. - Troy Times.

The typography Wuhu listlave the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of space, achieving a clearness not previously Governmental attained, and dispensing with those vast margins Tokyo and vacant spaces which have herotofore charac- Yokohama terized Chinese publications.

To illustrate the vast scope of the work the Secul ollowing facts are submitted for consideration:— Chalmers Vocabulary contains about 16,000 Chinese characters and Medhurst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese characters. Again, despite all the grammars and other elementary works as yet published, the student of this difficult language absolutely requires examples to display the various applications and equivalents of different words which uave one general meaning. Of these examples Sarawak this work contains more than five times as many as any other Dictionary hitherte pub-

For practical purposes the arrangement of the work is so complete, that a reference to its pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who. understand nothing but Chinese. In this respect the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in China, and to the natives themselves it explains subjects fully with which British very few indeed of them are perfectly acquainted. LOVERS. Fidelia woke next morning with a sweet strong sauss of happiness. Her first sensation was all of happiness—exquisite happiness. Why was the happy even for that first delightful moment ? Surely the had much to trouble her, and make her anxious and afraid. The very relationship into which she had allowed herself to be drawn with Japhet Bland was enough to embarrass her and to make her alarmed.

The fearful suspictors she had formed about him, and the reckiess resolve she had made to discover his scoret by her own unaided skill. must have filled her with a sense of tramendous and almost in colorable responsibility." All this came back upon her only too soon and drenched as with a cold shower her bright warm some of happiness

But the cause of that first and most grateful feeling was clear. That day Gerald was to see her for the first time since the night on the Embunkment. She had not accommand Lady Sourdale on any of her visits to the hospital to see him. Lady Scardale would not hear of such a thing, and Fidelia, impatient as she was, consenied to represe her impatience, and to housenrocuventionality that her days might be long in the land. This morning, then, he was to come; they were to b. together for the first time after that long and anxious separaton. She was to see him again. She had so many things to say to him. Her heart best quickly her eyes lighted with joy. Ah! but then came the thought-there were things shout which she must not talk to him. That brought a chilling sensation upon her, the knowledge that there we something which was weighing on her mind, and which she must not tell to Gerald. . FAr a while she was inclined to blame hersely keefuly to reproach her self bitterly, because she had allowed land to enter into any intimacy of talk with her, because she had allowed herself

Then, again, the poor perplexed girl tried to her suspictors? And was she not justified in try-them or not? Aiready she knew for a certainty that she was: right when she auspected or guessed that Profussor Bostock was really Japhet Bland; and was abe not nustifled in thinking that that pirce of persions might mean other mysteries in which there might be dunger to the life of her lover?
